Mike opens the meeting to a very excited crowd. Last weekend we had Men's Hockey, which was a great game. Mike mentions that he didn't do a great job at the production, but everyone else did, including Andrew A. and Reilly who ran around trying to fix the headsets. Tomorrow, we will not have Wednesday Night Live, but this Friday will be Women's Hockey vs. Mercyhurst, we will be meeting at 4:15 at the RPI office.

Dan on creative stuff: We have a large poster on the top floor of the union, which is currently doing nothing, and has had the same posters up for the past 2.5 years. Dan would like to put up some posts of upcoming productions from RPI TV. Our second news segment about the ECAV opening is finished, and will be online soon. Since we are having no Wednesday Night Live, Dan would like to shoot one of his friends who plays acoustic guitar and sings outdoors somewhere, and put it online as a production. Dan also mentions that there is major construction happening in the middle of campus, which may be a worthwhile news story.

Zach asks about the new RPI TV website, and Mike tells him that they plan on launching a new website in the near future, and that it will be a destination for people to find video, information about RPI TV, and will make a few things that we do around here easier, like scheduling people for events. Brian Zaik notes that the website will be "the greatest website ever made".
